My dearest
Zachary
I must be Frank.
You are, as they say in outer George Washington, a real link. You are also terrific, really terrific.
Respectfully
Passionately
"Frankly" Love Carol

Best wishes
Z. Gooden

"the pathos, the joy, the four year struggle & final spectacular success!!!"

"the fear and anticipation — the surprise ending"

all inside

*Curtain up on the sophomore
A shy, awkward sight.
A nervous performer
On opening night.
His first shaky steps
Toward the towering walls
Which first introduce him
To these "hallowed halls"
Fill him with awe
At the marble staircase
The long corridors,
And the swift school pace.*

*Act two, he's a junior,
Fam-i-li-ar-ized
With all his surroundings
And how hard he tries
To show that he's better,
Degrade the sophomore,
Forgetting he WAS one
A short time before.
Act three and the senior
Is running the school
He's gotten much taller,
Perhaps more mature?
A new stage before him
Life waits in the wings;
An old show has closed
And a new one begins.*

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

DIRECTED BY: Henry T. Hillson—Principal

Dear Graduates,

If everyone had always asked, "What's in it for me", what kind of world would we live in today? It would be a world without schools, without hospitals or parks or libraries or museums; there would be no relief for the unemployed or social security for the aged; it would be a world without a Declaration of Independence or a Gettysburg Address. It would be a world in which you and I would not want to live.

What we have in life that makes existence worthwhile comes from an age-old belief that there are values beyond personal gain or immediate satisfaction. It is a belief that sees all human beings possessed of dignity and entitled to some of the good things of life. It is very different from the philosophy that could say, "The public be damned. Ain't I got the power?"

Whatever we have of goodness and concern for others came because someone asked not what was in it for him but rather what he could do for someone else. Only in this way have we moved toward a better life for more people. It has been a slow and halting process, often interrupted, but even in one's lifetime, it is possible to see great change.

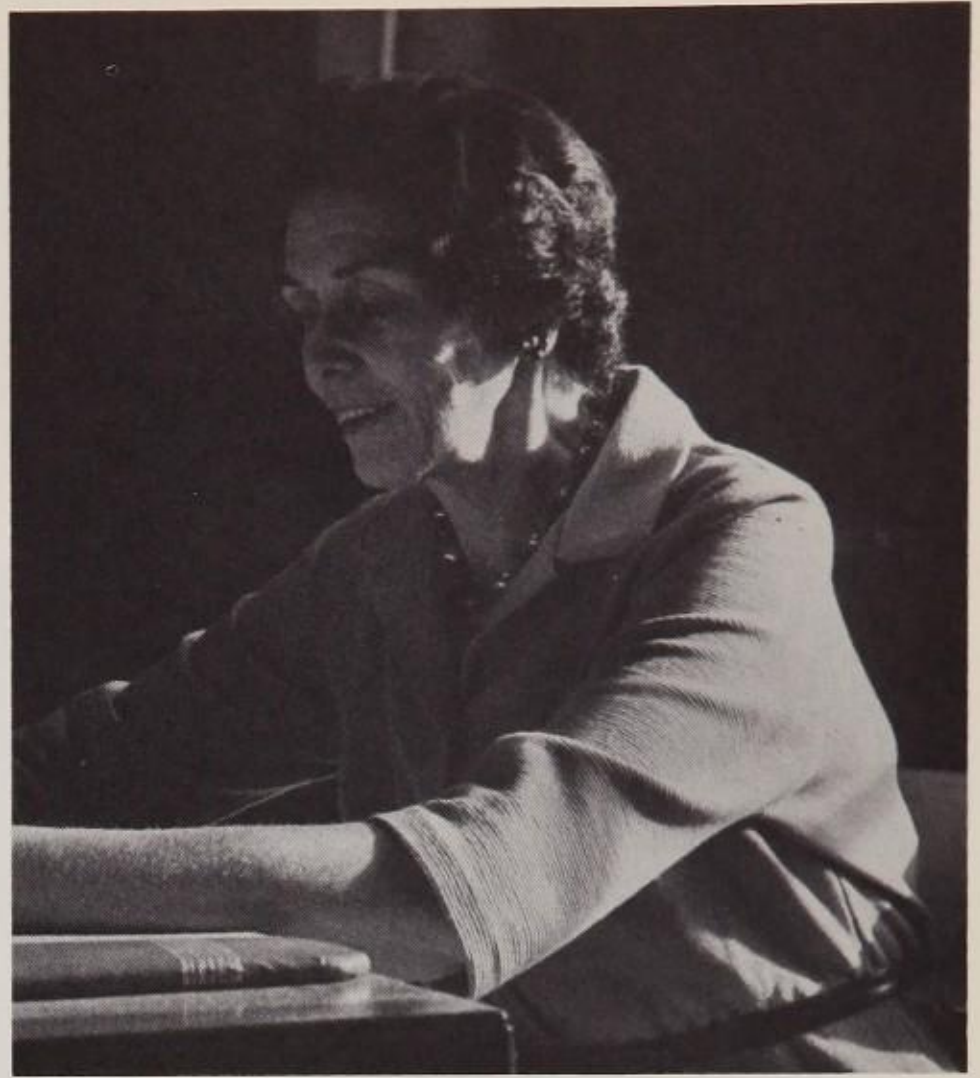

Not everyone can be an Albert Schweitzer or an Eleanor Roosevelt, but every one has it in his power to make a contribution of his own. The worker who turns out a good product or insists that his union show a concern for the public welfare is doing this, and so too is the employer who thinks of his employees as well as his profits. The citizen who willingly taxes himself to provide for the less fortunate or even writes the letter that urges legislation in the public interest or serves on a committee—each of these is helping make a better life. And if it is no more than a simple act of thoughtfulness or courtesy—this too is a contribution.

I hope you will think of this now and in the years to come.

Sincerely,
HENRY T. HILLSON
Principal

SUCCESS

They entered G.W. in 1960—
 Ten little freshmen, each like a pixie.
 Ten little sophomores, doing just fine,
 One cut a class, and then there were nine.
 Mr. Kenny caught one coming in late;
 Nine juniors once—now only eight.
 Eight happy seniors, just dreaming of heaven,
 One flunked four subjects, which left only seven.
 Seven little seniors out for kicks;
 Miss Gottesman got wise, then there were six.
 These six students were really alive;
 One got fresh and then there were five.
 Five little seniors thought school a great bore.
 Perry caught one and then there were four.
 These four scholars wanted eighth period free—
 One changed his program. Then there were three.
 Three lone seniors trying to be true;
 One failed a regents; oh well, we have two.
 Two little seniors, looking for fun.
 One looked too far and then there was one.
 One senior left, as good as could be,
 This one graduates in '63.

Since the beginning of time, man has striven, reached and sometimes touched that rising sun. Through each attempt he has made another step toward progress. Such developments cannot be solely classified in the field of science, for humanity directs science. Throughout each passing generation man has increased our cultural heritage, until now we stand with our eyes on still another horizon.

Each individual takes part in some measure in the march of civilization. However, certain people appear in every era who are more meaningful to us than others.

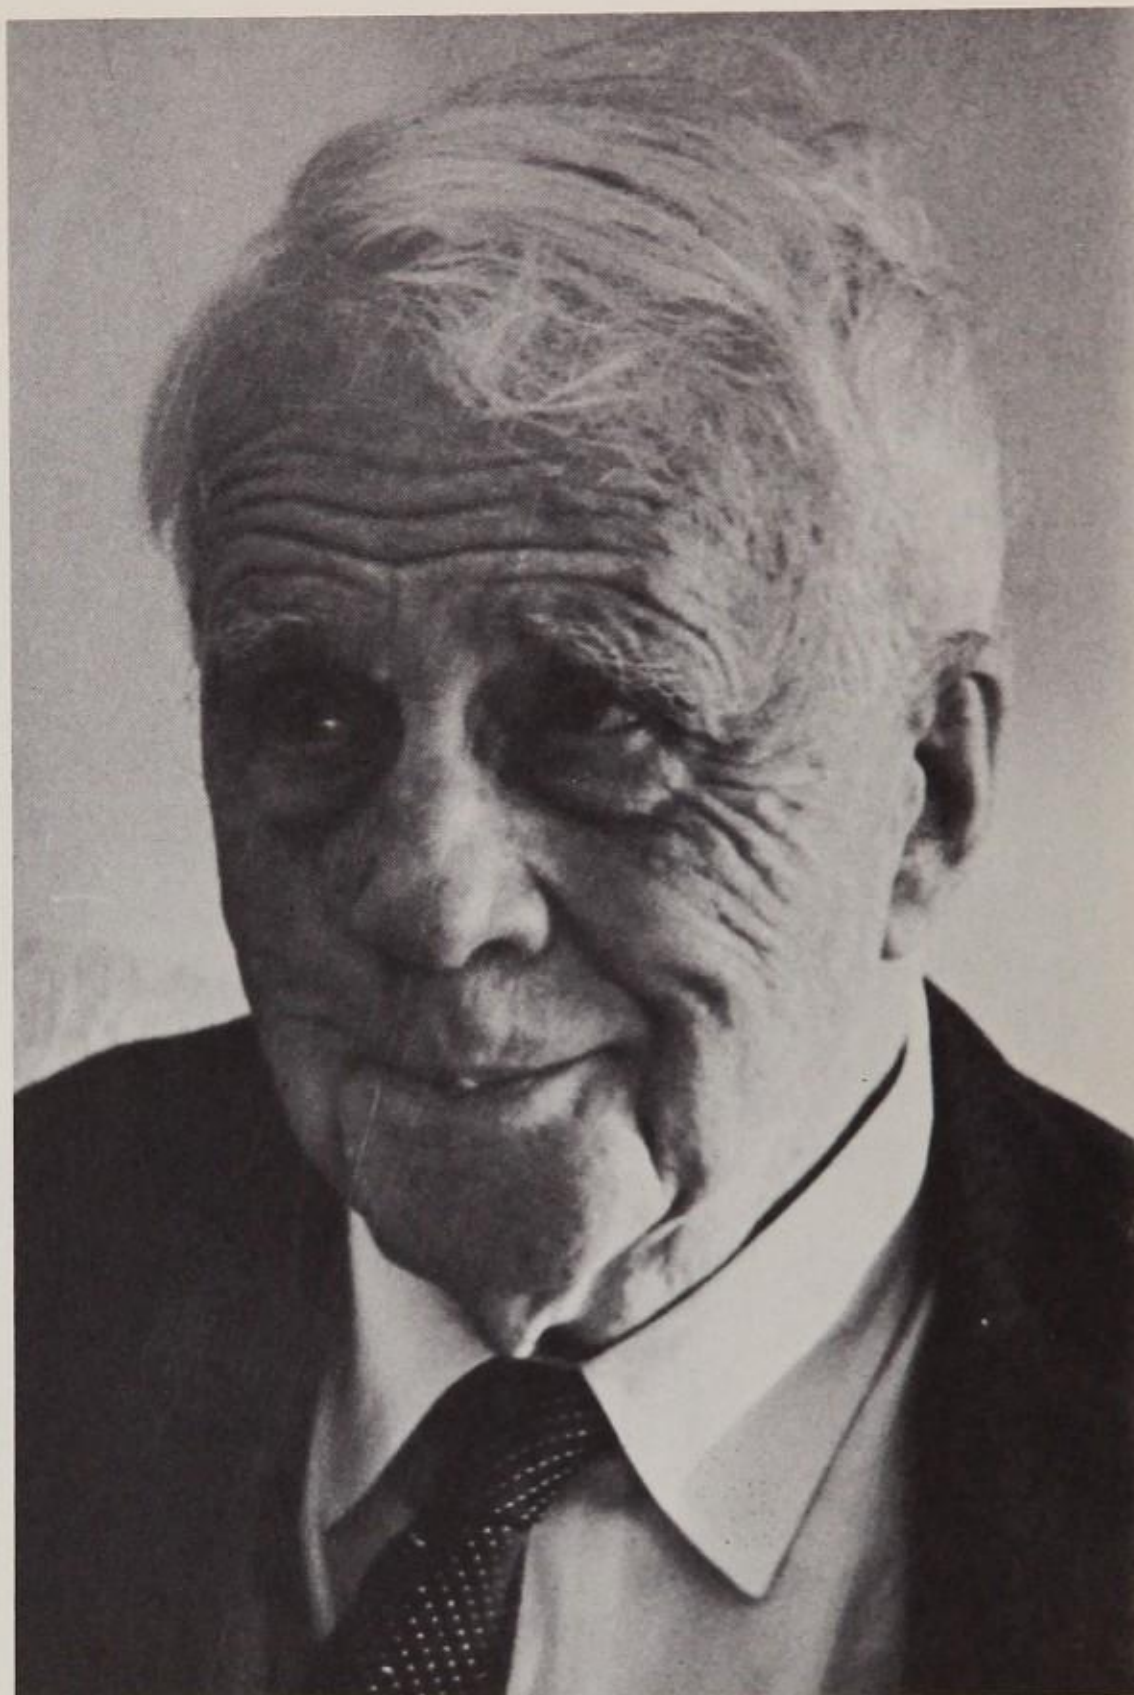

Two such notable figures who died during our years at George Washington were Eleanor Roosevelt and Robert Frost. The latter was one of the most renowned poets of this century. His contributions were not simply confined to poetic eloquence, for his tour of Russia promoted much political good-will and friendship. Sincerely American, his works spoke of the ordinary people, of country scenes, of beauty and quietude. It was two years ago, on a bitterly cold Inauguration Day that Frost stood bareheaded to read his poem, "The Gift" to President Kennedy, and a world-wide audience. He was probably the first poet so honored. We were the first people so enriched.

Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, has engraved a place for herself in the scrolls of history. As United States delegate to the United Nations and chairman of its Human Rights Commission, she aimed at world harmony amongst peoples of all races, colors and creeds. Regarded as one of the most outstanding ambassadors of good-will and amity, she remains a symbol of true Americanism. For her liberal viewpoints and understanding of human nature in every part of the world, she will never be forgotten by us who graduate or by others who follow.

We stand not only to mourn—but pledge to remember, and vow to carry on what they have created.

*A king away in far off land,
A knight in shining armor clad,
A daisy swaying in the breeze,
A maiden fair with song so sad*

*That anyone who reads of her
Can hardly help but grieve with her.*

*A novel, poem, or a play
Can carry you to places far
Away from what you've ever dreamed,
To places past the brightest star.*

*Death, birth, and laughter, sorrow,—all
In literature can be recalled.*

*A sonnet, story, novelette
Can bring you, too, so close to home
That you may recognize a friend
Or see in other's traits your own.*

*And yet the facts we cannot hide,
For English has another side . . .*

*Yes, maid or knight must often pause
To take a feathered plume in hand
And set upon another course
Of adjectives, nouns, pronouns, and
Some modifiers, quite misplaced,
Which must be kept in hand, with haste.*

*A run-on-sentence, or a phrase?
A verb with compound parts to spare,
A gerund, adverb, or per chance
A participle in mid air.*

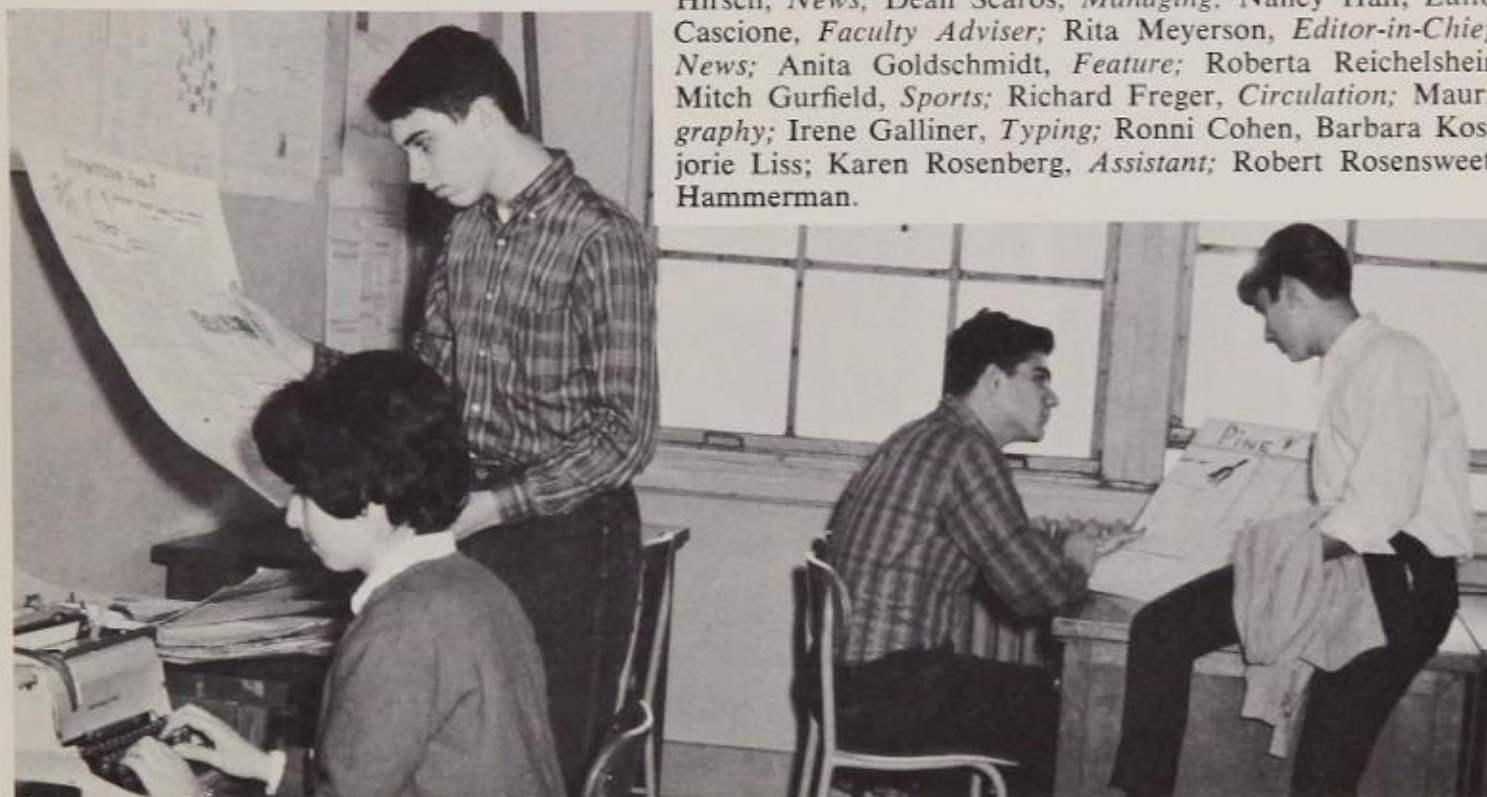

*Correct, arrange, and punctuate
Our language—we must get it straight.
We work and work with parts of speech
And punctuation marks until
We understand our native tongue
Whose grammar is complex, but still
No literature could bring elation
Without the proper punctuation.*

Axes X and Y we've studied,
Matrix is our current plight.

College math is fast approaching;
Fear of failure fills our heads.
Through with pi and simple numbers,
A.P.'s now our newest dread.

Ahead we look to higher math—

MY FAIR LADIES

The hollow sound of a ball being bounced across the room, the screams and shouts for favorite teams, and the laughter of girls having fun . . . yes, that's how we remember the gym.

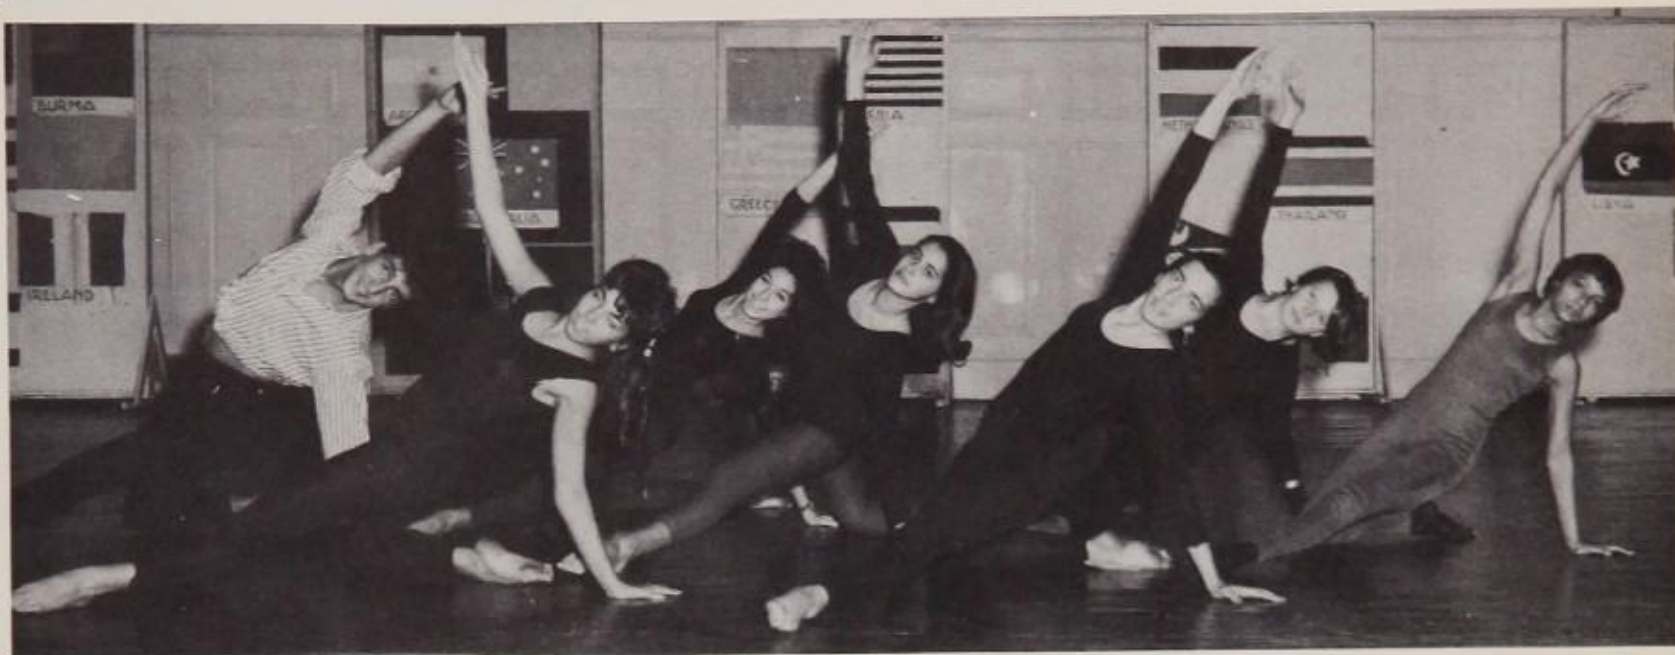

Who will ever forget those last few minutes of the period with only sixty seconds to dress completely? Your skirt is on backwards, two arms try to find a home in one sleeve, you trip over shoelaces and wonder if buttons are buttoned and zippers zipped. Well, you finally make it to your next period class . . . messy, exhausted and out of breath, only to be ordered out of the room to get a late pass. Who will ever forget the delightful gym locker room? Those maaaaarrrrrvelous aromas can be conjured up even now.

White, red, blue, green, yellow! What are they? Why bathing caps! First one goes on—then the other—do you remember? So many girls with colorful bulging heads. Girls reluctantly entering the cool, shimmering waters of the pool, then reluctantly going out into the halls with wet and tangled hair.

The "good ole days" of starched gymsuits and dirty sneakers are only memories now — but pleasant memories.

ALLS WELL THAT ENDS WELL

*Our revels now are ended. These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits and
Are melted into air, into thin air:
And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind. We are such stuff
As dreams are made on, and our little life
Is rounded with a sleep.*

HATCHET

"A little less noise!" Someone shouts and, turning around, sees a boy eating half a sandwich and an ice-cream pop. Looking out of the window one can see two boys, in orange shorts, running around the track. In the hall a bell rings and two girls drift into the room. "Hatchet meeting?" one asks indifferently. "You want to write?" we ask, without much hope. "Nope," the girls reply and wander away. Gazing down at photos, notes and stencils, someone says the deadly words, "When's our deadline?" We know the answer, but ask anyway. "How's the art staff coming along?" "They're all finished," a girl says and looks at an everest of crumpled memos. "How about a satire on Cuba?" a boy eagerly suggests. "Why not a poem about the lunchroom?" "Let's have a six page spread on the cafeteria patrol." Deadline surges through our heads. "Hey," a girl shouts between bites of an apple, "Where's our editor?"

SENIOR COMMITTEES

*The senior prom
My senior hat
My graduation gown
And cap
The senior boatride,
Ring and key
Each means another thing
To me.
Each one of these brings back,
In part,
A memory,
Close to my heart.
And none of these
Could, without
Senior committees,
Come about.*
